These are the neocons and their various organizations which have helped drive US policy over the past 40 to 50 years. They are very right wing, they are very hawkish on foregn policy. They are very anti-Soviet. They help perpetuate the Cold War. Some of these people are Democrats. They do not see their behavior and policies as inconsistent with the Democratic Party. They are for the most part Scoop Jackson Democrats.

Rabbi Silverman while not overtly political was of the neo-con persuasion. He was a conservative rabbi known to both Norman Podhoretz and Midge Decter. JTS is a conservative seminary; that's why it was set up - to conterbalance the emerging reform movement in Judaism. Rabbi Silverman, IMO, was the entry point for Syemour Bolten into the Dallas community. This is not an indictment of Rabbi Silverman, N Pod or Midge D. Bolten himself was a member of the group that became known as neo-cons. Since Bolten was overseas betwen 1955 and 1960, he most likely was kept abreast of the emerging neo-con dialogue by his boyhood friend, Max Kampelman. When Bolten was given the mission to "manage JFK", he naturally used his contacts, the people he knew and trusted. That wopuld make sense, corrrect? You wouldn't use people you didn't know or didn't trust.

Rabbi Silverman would be a logical contact point for a man like Seymour Bolten. Since the operation to kill JFK is done off the books, Bolten must use the resources that he has in his private life. How did Bolten know about Rabbi Silverman? Perhaps through Max Kampelman who was a more conservative Jew. Perhaps through Israeli contacts. Rabbi Silverman's father, Morris Silverman, was a rabbi of note in America. Shearith Israel was a conservative congregation in Dallas, perhaps more acceptable to a conservative like Bolten.

The rabbi claims not to have a lot of friends while at Yale. I find this not credible.

If you believe in conspiracy, and you believe that JD Tippit movements were strange and that he was in someway part of this conspiracy, then you have to ask yourself how he was recruited. Since JD Tippit worked at Austin's Barbecue, and Austin's Barbecue was in a building that was once owned by Ralph Paul, it seems logical that JD Tippit was recommended by Ralph Paul to Jack Ruby. My best guess is that Seymour Bolten was referred to Jack Ruby by Rabbi Silverman. It was Jack Ruby who recommended JD Tippit to Seymour Bolten.

Haganah in Israel 1947-48

Probably nearly everybody who lived in Oak Cliff had visited Austin's Barbecue at one time or another. Tippit worked security at Austin's Barbecue. It would seem logical that either Jack Ruby or Ralph Paul had visited Austin's Barbecue where they could have met JD Tippit.

The rabbi is conservative. This fits in well with the Yale culture and the people who graduate from there. Regardless, the rabbi is a connected individual who is in the club.
